

HUMANA PEOPLE TO PEOPLE

“Development - it is about fostering new generations with golden hearts and heads and hands.”

(The Humana People to People Charter)

In response to the pressing issues facing mankind, members of the Federation implement a number of programs. They include education, community development, fighting HIV & AIDS, agriculture, food security and protection of the environment.

Educating the children and youth

Protecting the environment through collection, processing and sale of second hand clothes

Organizing families to improve their own living conditions

Training farmers to increase income

Individual counseling to control HIV/AIDS

“When being a grown up means never becoming old, we become part of the struggle against the plague and the war.”

(The Humana People to People Charter)

Through 328 projects, members of the Federation benefit 12 million people and employ more than 9,000 staff on an annual basis. The people engaged in Humana People to People's development efforts are trained and equipped with tools and knowledge enabling them to transform their dreams and wishes for a better world into practical actions.

Training of Teachers

There is an unfulfilled need for teachers for the rural areas in most developing countries.

Over the past 16 years, Humana People to People member associations have trained highly qualified and dedicated primary school teachers to take up positions in the countryside.

In Partnership with the Governments of Angola, India, Malawi and Mozambique, 24 colleges have been established, graduating more than 2,200 teachers annually.

So far, 7,900 teachers have completed the training and received a certificate issued by the respective Ministers of Education qualifying them to serve in Government Primary Schools.

The two and a half year education represents a life changing program of training and experiences. From 2009 the education is one year in Mozambique.

The education includes practice periods in primary schools, where the would-be teacher learns the skills of teaching and becomes equipped to meet the challenges of being a teacher in a rural setting.

At the One World University in Mozambique, instructors for the teacher training colleges earn their bachelor degrees.

“Fighting with the Poor” is the second faculty at the same University.

“We want to see loving and caring, responsible, creative and engaged grown ups as the basic element of the feeling of security for the life of every child.”

(The Humana People to People Charter)

Food Security & Fighting with the Poor

Farmers Club

The Farmers' Clubs program organizes and builds capacity in small-scale farmers to improve their living conditions by increasing productivity, crop quality and linking farmers to viable markets. The program introduces improved agricultural techniques and provides a forum to develop the skills and experience of participating farmers. The program puts focus on improved soil management and introduction of organic farming methods alongside better water access and protection of the environment.

Farmers' Clubs projects are operated in Angola, China, Guinea Bissau, Malawi, Mozambique and Zimbabwe benefiting a total of 74,000 farmers and 370,000 family members.

Child Aid / Community Development

The Child Aid program builds the capacity of 3,000 families and their communities to work towards the common goal of improving their children's lives. Child Aid is all-inclusive, and recognizes that in order to nurture children successfully, the entire community must be strengthened. Families are brought together to address a range of community development issues, including health, income, education, municipal development, environmental awareness, and greater opportunity for children.

65 Child Aid projects are operated in 15 countries, benefiting more than 380,000 families.

“When water dies from the burning bacteria, we drill even deeper, we clean better, we organize health groups.”

Educating the Young and the Children

Vocational Schools

The Vocational Schools offer young people training in a number of demanding theoretical and practical subjects, comprising a secondary education as well as basic vocational training. This provides the students with a solid foundation to pursue further studies and to start a professional life. Agriculture, Carpentry, Mechanics, Construction and Business management are some of the many vocational subjects introduced. Today, members of the Federation operate 12 Vocational Schools providing education to more than 1,600 youth on a yearly basis.

Primary and Secondary Schools

Humana People to People's schools for children started as a part of the Child Aid programs in 1990, targeting the street children from some of the large cities. In both Angola and Mozambique the wars had resulted in many children being displaced in their own country. The idea was to create quality primary school opportunities for street children who had dropped out of school. Today, members of the Federation operate 16 Schools for 10,000 children including street kids and otherwise vulnerable children.

Children's Towns

The Children's Towns Projects provide education and vocational skills to orphans and former street children. During the course of the program, participants transform themselves from being shy, abused, and often traumatized individuals, into bright and skilled human beings, full of potential. 3 Children's Towns are operated in Mozambique, Zambia and Zimbabwe benefiting 1,225 children on an annual basis. The projects also reach out to more than 10,000 vulnerable children from surrounding communities.

Fighting to Control HIV & AIDS

Total Control of the Epidemic (TCE)

Total Control of the Epidemic (TCE) operates within geographical areas of 100,000 people over a three year period to provide individual counseling and mobilization of people in the area. Through the program individuals are equipped with the knowledge, skills, and confidence needed to take control of HIV/AIDS. Operationally, the TCE model involves recruiting, training and deploying 50 local Field Officers in each area of 100,000 people. The Field Officer walks through his/her field of 2,000 people to visit households, schools and businesses. The Field Officer facilitates an open dialogue about HIV and promotes decisions on safe sexual behavior, mobilizes people to become volunteers (Passionates), and assists in establishing small scale enterprises. In a number of countries, Field Officers are trained and certified by the Ministries of Health to conduct field testing and provide post test counseling. Through the engagement of every single person, cooperation with existing infrastructures, and the community at large, TCE forges crucial links with government interventions at national and local level. Since its inception, TCE has proven effective throughout Sub-Saharan Africa, as well as in areas of India and China reaching over 10 million beneficiaries. TCE is funded by a range of different agencies such as National AIDS Councils, The Global Fund, The World Bank, CDC, USAID/PEPFAR, USDA, Johnson & Johnson and other national and international entities.

HOPE Humana People to People

The HOPE projects support people with HIV. From the Hope Centers the projects conduct many and varied activities like VCT, positive living clubs, lessons in home based care, nutrition, and much more - all needed in the fight against AIDS and in dealing with the consequences of the AIDS epidemic.

“Look right into the face of AIDS and you will realize, that only the concerted effort from all spheres of society with the Solidary Humanism as a vital platform can hope to help, support, prolong, assist, encourage all involved parties.”

(The Humana People to People Charter)

Protecting the environment with collection, processing and sale of Second Hand Clothes

During the last 30 years members of Humana People to People in Europe, the United States and Canada have built a large scale income generating system: collection and sale of second hand clothing. Through 28,500 collection boxes placed in cities and towns across the countries, millions of people have the opportunity to contribute to development by donating their used clothes and shoes. Through this business model Humana People to People turns zero value into considerable value. Reusing the clothes instead of discarding of them in land fills protects the environment, and when the donated clothes are sold the surplus is used in support of development programs world wide. Part of the collected clothing is sold on the commercial markets. Another part is shipped by sea to Africa, where Humana People to People associations sort and sell the clothes at affordable prices. In this way income is generated locally for the many social programs while also creating a large number of jobs and stimulating economic growth in the receiving countries.

Development Instructors

The Development Instructor program constitutes a vital part of the Humana People to People Movement. Seeing development as a global effort, Humana People to People invites people to contribute in person through volunteer work at one of many projects in Africa, Asia or Latin America. Trained for 6 months before starting their work at the projects, thousands of Europeans, Americans, Asians and Africans have over the years contributed their impressive share and upon return to their home country they have contributed significantly to build positive attitudes in the public towards the challenges of development.

Frontline Institute

Frontline Institute in Angola, Malawi and Zimbabwe builds capacity in future project leaders to work in the Humana People to People Movement. The students are from Africa, Latin America and Asia.

Partnership in Development constitutes an important element in financing Humana People to People's activities.

The members of Humana People to People implement projects with funds from among others:

Multilateral donors

The Global Fund to fight AIDS, Tuberculosis and Malaria, Unicef, The UN Democracy Fund, European Commission, Asian Development Bank and The World Bank.

Governments

Government of Angola, Guinea Bissau, Malawi, Mozambique, Namibia and Zambia, USAID/Pepfar, MFA Spain (AECID), MFA Denmark (DANIDA), MFA Finland, MFA Holland and the Government of Norway, USDA, USAID/ Pepfar and Ambassadors' Girls Scholarship Program, US Centres for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC), Ambassadors' Girls Scholarship Program (USAID), National AIDS Councils in several countries.
